H. W. SIEBER,
Manager of the GAZETTE.

The Burlington road announced a reduction of the Denver-to-Chicago rate of one dollar. This is on account of the shortening of the time by the enterprising road.

We shall receive to-day a car load of paper, most of which will be used in our mammoth New Year's edition. The cuts for the sheet have arrived and the press work has already been begun.

We fail to understand how the Colorado Springs GAZETTE can favor a repeal of the duty on wool. More than any other section of the state is El Paso county interested in protection of American wool. Does the GAZETTE believe this industry could live without protection?—Denver Republican.

It is not necessary for the Republican to understand this because the GAZETTE has not declared in favor of the repeal of the duty on wool. We have already stated that the part of the president's message on wool was an unjust discrimination against that industry. We also think that the wool men ought to be protected so long as the woolen manufacturers are, and that both should be protected until they can get along without it. Our contemporary should not be so skittish on this subject, and imagine that everything written in favor of taxing luxuries to the ... and of reducing all taxes on necessities to the lowest point consistent with the protection of American labor and capital, is writing in favor of free trade. It is a kind of doctrine that will please the masses. In this discussing we we have only favored free trade on sugar, salt and fruits. This would reduce our income $15,000,000 and more than wipe out the surplus. This would not injure any industry except that of the ... planter, and he could be paid a bounty on his production so as to make him even.

The Denver Republican very wisely points to what we said in regard to the record of the Republican party and so there is nothing more to be said on that point. It also says the republican party in 1887 is for protection and will make this an issue in 1888. This is not a startling revelation. This has been evident to any one familiar with political thought and we have always assumed this. But how far it may be an issue is difficult to tell because the democratic party, whatever its sentiments are, will be too cowardly to confront boldly and openly make this issue. Mr. Cleveland certainly did not come out for free trade. He made a very bad break on wool as we pointed out in the comments on his message. But otherwise the sentiments he expressed are like those expressed by President Arthur, Secretary Folger the republican tariff commission, and hosts of republican members of congress in 1882 and 1883. It is not opposed in any way to the republican platform of 1884. The only question now is whether the protection in the republican party will favor is that of Mr. Blaine or that of the republican party in 1881 when the party pledged itself to remove the inequalities of the tariff and to reduce the surplus. In this connection we may suggest that the Republican give up in its discussions its continual misrepresentation of those who simply demand—such a reduction of the taxes on the necessities of life as will not to more the price of labor or imperil any industry and at the same time demand the retention of the taxes on the luxuries including tobacco. The most distinguished advocate of protection this country ever had never called this sort of thing free.

Wishon & Armentrout, the People's Clothiers, continue to lead the trade in "Honest Bargains" in

Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing,
Hats, Shoes and Furnishings.

The People have found no gaudy work about us, but truly reasonable selling the very best goods the market affords for less money.

Many of our readers, who have the good sense to look around before purchasing, inform us we are selling much lower than others pretending to sell at Cut Prices.

This is no animal show, but a Clothing House that is selling better and outwear all others, and that, too for less money than common inferior goods.

Purchase your friends a nice Christmas Present from our stock. They will appreciate it. Nothing nicer than fine Silk Mufflers, Handkerchiefs, Fancy Ties, or London Dyed Alaska Seal Caps and Gloves.

Don't purchase till you see our goods and prices.

Yours Very Respectfully,

WISHON & ARMENTROUT.
